ENDACE NAMES STEPHEN GLEAVE AS VICE PRESIDENT OF WORLDWIDE MARKETING

Supplier of high performance monitoring solutions taps key SS8 Networks executive to enhance worldwide presence.

Auckland, NZ, September 24, 2007- Endace Limited (LSE/AIM: EDA), a world leader in network traffic monitoring solutions, today announced the appointment of Stephen Gleave as Vice President of Worldwide Marketing. Based in Washington DC, Gleave will spearhead Endace's marketing campaigns and drive the continued development of their high speed traffic capture and analysis solutions.

Previously the VP of Marketing for SS8 Networks, a company specializing in lawful interception, Gleave has also held executive marketing roles at Network Equipment Technologies (NYSE: NWK), Ubiquity Software, Jetstream Communications and Premisys. Earlier responsibilities included sales, support and marketing positions at Newbridge Networks, ACC and GEC-Plessey. Having divided his career equally between the UK and USA, Gleave brings broad networking experience and a unique blend of marketing creativity and technical understanding to Endace.

"Steve has proven time and again, that he can position technology companies in a way that customers understand," said Mike Riley, CEO of Endace Limited. "He's successfully built brands, momentum, confidence and excitement for employers, customers and prospects alike. We are delighted to combine his industry credentials with our strong technology heritage to further position Endace as the recognized leader in very high performance network monitoring solutions. I've worked with Steve before and I am delighted to be putting our partnership back together, continuing to strengthen Endace's world class management team."
